Participants in the culinary arts program at the Passages Women's Center in Billings will prepare and serve the food. The program is a pre-apprenticeship training program at the Passages Women's Center in Billings that teaches women offenders real-world food service industry skills. In 2012, the program received the national U.S. Department of Labor's Trailblazer and Innovator Award, given to a handful of programs nationwide for success in training workers. Launched in 2009, this first-of-its-kind, 18-month program requires 2,000 hours of hands-on training and another 280 hours of coursework study.
